What is the Emergency Line?

The Massachusetts Child Abuse Emergency Line is a statewide, after-hours emergency response system designed to ensure the safety and protection of children across the Commonwealth. Judge Baker Children’s Center (Judge Baker) operates the Child Abuse Emergency Line for the Massachusetts Department of Children and Families (DCF), partnering with DCF On-Call Supervisors and Emergency Response Social Workers afterhours.

Who Calls the Emergency Line?

Calls to the Emergency Line come predominantly from mandated reporters, specific professionals who are legally required to report suspected child abuse or neglect. These include law enforcement professionals, medical personnel, school teachers and principals, and others. However, anyone can call the Emergency Line if they are concerned about the safety of a specific child or children. In situations where children are at imminent risk, we consult with a DCF On-Call Supervisor, who can initiate an emergency response.

The Emergency Line also takes calls about children in the care or custody of DCF, who are missing or absent from care.

Child Abuse Emergency Line Teams

In order to maximize responsiveness, the Emergency Line is organized into two units:

Child Abuse & Neglect: The busiest unit, this team screens reports of suspected child abuse or neglect taken from mandated reporters and other callers. These reports are reviewed by Supervisors and Clinical Managers, and often in collaboration with DCF On-Call Supervisors.

Missing or Absent Children:

This team takes calls from foster families, DCF-contracted residential facilities, and others who need to report that a child in DCF custody is missing or absent. Emergency Line staff coordinate with police and others to return children to their placements when found.

When You Call the Emergency Line...

Our Emergency Line Operators are always available to help direct your call by pressing 0. If you are on hold waiting for a Telephone Screener, you will have the option to receive a call-back, enabling you to hang up and still keep your place in the queue.
